→ Employment Opportunity – Senior PHP Programmer

Smallbox Software, an innovative BC-based software company, seeks a Senior PHP Programmer to assist with the development of applications based on our proprietary content management software (CMS).

With a client list including private and public sector leaders such as the BC Film Commission, Graphic Designers of Canada, and the Canada Green Building Council, Smallbox is poised for further expansion into this competitive marketplace.

Corporate Profile

Smallbox Software is an award winning content management systems provider with offices in Victoria and Vancouver. We have been in the content management business since 1999 and offer CMS services to more than 100 clients. We offer services to all levels of business from international organizations to home businesses. The key to offering this range of scalability is a flexible and modular CMS.

Our flagship product – Smallbox CMS – allows end users to easily add, edit and delete web content in an intuitive online environment. With no software to download users simply login to gain access to powerful administrative tools.

Smallbox turns your website into a true communications tool allowing you to update your website anytime, anywhere.

Position Overview

We are looking for a dynamic, self-motivated individual who picks up new skills quickly and works well in a team environment. Versatility and the ability to multi-task are musts.

Smallbox offers an exciting work environment where you can bring your ideas to the table and share in the vision of creating a superior content management system. This includes refining existing modules as well as developing new ones to meet the needs of the marketplace. In addition to building and refining modules for Smallbox CMS, custom web applications will also be required.

The work is exciting and fresh with each new project bringing unique challenges and opportunities.
